

Behavior Policy:

Each child will have their own cuppy for 'fuzzy' keeping. Fuzzies will be awarded for many "good" behaviors (bringing back homework folder SIGNED and work completed, finishing seatwork on time, being prepared for class, having pencil pouches properly kept up, receiving a WOW on any test). Fuzzies can be awarded also for helping others, volunteering, following directions/rules or when I feel a student is really giving it their all. Fuzzies are taken as consequences as well. A student will receive a verbal warning if they are not following classroom rules/expectation. After that they will have to give me a fuzzy out of their cup. Fuzzies can also be taken for other reasons (if they do not write their name on their paper, if they don't do their homework or if they are caught in the hallway talking, etc.). Fuzzies will be counted up and tallied about every two weeks and "cashed" in for awesome coupons to use on a multitude of things. I currently have 49 coupons ranging from treat jar and computer dibs, to no shoes in class and no homework pass.
